

John Scottus Primary School Old Conna

Admissions Policy

1. Introduction

John Scottus Primary School Old Conna is a private Primary School under the patronage and trusteeship of the John Scotus Education Trust.

The educational philosophy of the School is centred in the belief that every child has a core of fine, quiet energy, an inner light*, which expresses itself according to the child's individual nature and talents. Teachers facilitate this beautiful and bright expression by providing good examples, encouragement and a focus on developing virtues such as kindness.

The School is under the auspices of TUSLA. The School has an eight-year cycle from age 5 to 12 years. Teaching follows the Primary School Curriculum. However, John Scottus Primary School Old Conna is not a National School and is not under the auspices of the Department of Education nor is it subject to the Rules for National Schools.

This Admission Policy complies with the requirements of the Equal Status Acts 2000-2018. In drafting this policy, the Board of Management of the school has consulted with school staff and the school patron.

The policy was approved by the Board of Management on 27th January 2022. It is published on the school's website and will be made available in hardcopy to any person who requests it.

The application form for admission is published on the school's website and will be made available in hardcopy to any person who requests it.

2. Characteristic Spirit and Values

Our school is named after John Scottus Eriugena, the Platonist philosopher, theologian and poet of Ireland's Golden Age. Our values are inspired by a common thread, or perennial philosophy, found in the great traditions of East and West.

Our motto 'Laetus Impresens' – Delight in the Present (borrowed from the renaissance Florentine philosopher Marsilio Ficino) expresses the importance we attribute to being fully present and connected in every moment. At John Scottus, we emphasise the regular practice of meditation and mindfulness which strengthens focus, enhances awareness and connects the student to a sense of quiet presence whether in stillness or in activity. We see this as an essential tool for living a fulfilled life.

Our values include:

Unity: we celebrate the concept of oneness and interconnection, as found in many great traditions from the East and the West.

Spirituality: We see our students and each other as spiritual beings. We acknowledge that there is a deeper presence beyond that of the body, mind and heart.

The Spirit of Enquiry: we encourage the Socratic Method of discussion to train the mind and open the heart, developing the power of reason and learning through self-discovery.

Service: we enable our student's growth into responsible global citizens by encouraging social awareness of the world around us and our relationship to it.

Love: we endeavour to meet each person and situation from a place of love, first. We believe all of our students to be intelligence and love in action.

3. Ethos

The ethos of John Scottus Primary School is grounded in the belief that at the core of each individual there is a perfection which can find expression in the life as it unfolds. The job of the educator is to nurture and fulfil this expression. As put by Plutarch,

' Education is not the filling of a pail but the lighting of a fire'

The relationship between teacher and pupil is fundamental and our ethos values the building and maintaining of strong relationships between teacher and pupil. This involves connecting with the child and developing a real understanding of their nature, qualities and tendencies.

Simple practices such as greeting each child openly and warmly each morning foster this connection.

We believe that 'to light this fire', nurturing the innate qualities such as courage, generosity, and perseverance, provides a base from which children can explore and meet the challenges of the world with confidence and hope.

Harnessing the power of attention is another essential feature of allowing each child to flourish and be successful. They explore the power of connecting in the present moment when playing, writing, speaking, listening, running or pausing. We encourage our children to 'let their light shine' to always do their best and to be confident that this effort will sow the seeds of excellence and will help uncover their particular aptitude. We aim to deliver quality learning without pressure. The children are encouraged to 'meet the need', which further develops the power of attention and helps them to practice being independent while engaging with other people in the approach to school work.

Revealing and evolving the inner divine spark in each child is greatly enhanced by the regular practice of falling still. Children naturally have an affinity with the present moment. The daily practices of stillness give them the tools to help diminish the 'noise' in the head and empower them to harness their inner strengths.

Outdoor learning is a central aspect to the ethos of John Scottus. Imparting the skills and content of the National Curriculum through the medium of the environment is vigorously explored by teachers and pupils alike. This can be at all times of the year and in all weathers.

To nurture this 'best self' within each child, they need to be exposed to the best that our own culture can provide along the best from the traditions which have sustained the civilisations of the world. In the belief that this great greatness will be recognised by the child, we encourage them to learn and have fun with words of wisdom from both east and west. Emphasis is placed on speech, drama and learning by heart. This gives them a rich store to enjoy in the moment but also to draw on in adulthood for inspiration and guidance.
